The 2019 Domaine de l'Horizon Rouge offers an alluring bouquet of perfectly ripe sloes, cherries, blue berries and blackcurrant. Filigreed, refined and terribly fresh on the palate, this is a gorgeous, lush and intense but medium-weight red with fine tannins and vibrant mineral acidity that is sourced in slate (Grenache) and limestone (Carignan). A fabulous, pure and aromatic wine with serious substance. Natural cork. 12.5% stated alcohol. Tasted in Oldenburg, Germany, in February 2022.

The 2017 Domaine de l'Horizon Rouge offers aromas of dark cherries on the slightly animal, rather rustic and ordinary nose. Lush and round on the palate but with fresh acidity and a rather rustic tannin structure, this is a concentrated, somewhat untamed, tart and palate-cleansing red with character but no greatness. The 2016 Domaine de l'Horizon Rouge is deep, intense, lush and plummy on the nose that also reveals finely grained stony notes of potted strawberry, raspberry, nougat and mocha. Full-bodied, intense and generous on the palate but fresh and vital, with fine tannins and mineral acidity, this is a big and tensioned, typically Catalan red wine with plummy rather than forest berry aromas and a great finish, very long, pure and tensioned. The 2010 Domaine de l'Horizon Blanc offers a clear, intense and resinous, elegant and refreshing citrus fruit bouquet. The orange-colored 2008 Domaine de l'Horizon Blanc is pure, refined and delicately oxidative on the nose, but it doesn't lack any precision, spices or even concentration. Full-bodied, intense and rich on the palate but elegant, precise and fresh, with linear, ripe acidity, remarkable extract and fine tannins, this wine is stylistically unique, which I also found attractive in its youth. Though I never expected this orange color of this formerly intensely lemon-colored wine, but the precision, vitality, intensity and extract are still untouched. It's a gorgeous wine for those who can accept a certain oxidation. Natural cork. 13% stated alcohol. Tasted in Oldenburg, Germany, in February 2022.

The very first but never released vintage of the domaine is the 2006 Domaine de l'Horizon Blanc, of which 1,600 liters were produced for a wedding party (on the press from Gérard Gauby and in the vats from Tom Lubbe). It's a golden-orange colored white with great chalky and slatey precision and fine reduction but also pretty toasty notes. Full-bodied, massive and concentrated on the palate, with astringent tannins, this is a massive but still vital white from the south, with lots of alcohol, warmth and intensity but also precision and even finesse. Natural cork. Tasted in Oldenburg, Germany, in February 2022.
